Reminiscences of Judge Walton

Charles E. Waterman of Mechanic Falls Tells of Incidents Regarding Judge Walton in Court

The reminiscences of Judge Whitman and Don Seitz, concerning the late Judge Walton, brought up other incidents about that jurist in my mind.

It has been my fortune, good or otherwise, to report the doings of Oxford County courts for many years, off and on, and because of that I cannot help knowing more or less about most of the judges who have visited the county during the past half-century, including Judge Walton.

I never thought he was a great favorite with the Oxford Bar, or indeed, any other bar of the state. He had a way of injecting trifling matters into the cases, trivial mostly, and without connection. I remember one such case, which was heard along in the eighties, concerning a lot of poplar, (or popple) pulp wood grown and cut in the town of Bethel. I have forgotten the facts of the controversy, but it was considered an important case. John P. Swasey, of Canton was on one side and John A. Morrill of Auburn, on the other. There were other lawyers connected with it.

As the case progressed, it became apparent that Morrill and his witnesses talked about the product in controversy as "poplar," while Swasey and his witnesses called the same thing "popple."

Morrill was addressing the court on a motion or something of the kind, which he wished to have incorporated into the records of the case and in which he called the wood in question, "poplar."

"Now, look here!" thundered the judge, "What are you fighting over—poplar or popple wood? You say it is 'poplar,' and Swasey says it is 'popple.' Now which is it?"

"I believe, your honor," replied Mr. Morrill, "that I am using the pronunciation of standard dictionaries."

"Mr. Swasey," continued the judge, addressing the other lawyer, "what are you fighting over?"

"Popple," replied that attorney, "I wasn't asked by my client to say anything else!"

Mr. Swasey's client was called upon. "What kind of wood did you raise on your lot?" inquired the judge.

"Popple," replied the man. "I never heard of 'poplar,' before in my life."

"Living all your life in Roxbury and never heard of any poplar being grown there?"

"Never," replied the man.

"Now," continued the judge, addressing Mr. Morrill, "we are talking about 'popple' wood. They don't raise any other kind in Roxbury," guess a man who has lived there all his life and raised it all his life ought to know more about the name than any dictionary!"

Davis Farm Buildings Destroyed

The Charles Davis, formerly the Allen Brook stand of buildings on the Allen Hill road was destroyed by fire, Thursday morning, November 1st. The loss was estimated at about $30,000 with a small insurance.

The fire started around the chimney in the main part of the house, built some years ago by Mr. Holbrook. This structure was 52 feet wide and 100 feet long, and in it were 120 tons of hay, 200 bushels of potatoes, 40 tons of ensilage in the silo besides farming tools and machinery. Its timbers were hand-hewn and massive.

Attempts to pull down the long shed connecting the house and barn were futile because of the solid construction of the frame. A garage and other small disconnected buildings were saved.

The buildings had been a land mark for many years. The farm was purchased by Matti Pulkkinen a few years since, who has kept the farm in a high state of production.

The place was near the Oxford Spring Sanatorium for the treatment of World War Veterans which burned about five years ago.

OUR OCTOBER BUSINESS

was the largest (with the single exception of December) in the history of our store

Our volume of sales during October was our largest for any single month since we have been in business (excepting December which is in a class of its own because of the Holiday business)

We are most grateful to our customers to whom we owe this splendid record. The increase in our business in October and for the whole year since we opened our new store means a great deal to us. For the volume of our sales indicates our degree of success in anticipating and meeting the needs and requirements of the great majority of the people of Maine and Northern New England:—

In making this the store to turn to for all that is new, smart and attractive; for all that meets the ideas and desires of youth; for what is attractive and to the liking of their elders; for what is sound, practical and dependable; for assortments that always insure satisfactory selections; for the lowest possible prices consistent with good quality and workmanship.

In making this a store that gives equal consideration to the wishes of those more concerned with what they want than price and to the interests of those who from choice or necessity make every penny count.

If you've been our customer, but have not traded with us lately, we believe it will pay you to try us again.

If you've never been our customer, we trust you will give us a trial; that you will like our merchandise and our values.

Class Gives Poverty Party
Miss Ada Church will be the hostess to the W. D. T. U. Class poverty party at the Baptist Church this Thursday evening. A merry time is expected, according to invitations sent out on poverty stricken wrapping paper.

The wearing is quite fetching and unique, at least in South Paris, and reads as follows:

"You air asked to a Poverty Party apoging to have in the Baptist Vestry, Thursday nite, Nov. 8, 1928."

"Rais and Regalushuns. Chap. 1. Every woman who kums must wear a caliker dress and apers or sunshis clearly apriprate. Chap. 2. All men must wear there ole clocs and flannil shurts. After a very brief illness, preceded by some months of impaired health, Arthur W. Hammond died Saturday night, Nov. 3, at the home of his son, Lewis, in Rumford, where he made his home. Mr. Hammond was a native of Paris, where he was born in April, 1858, the son of Albert M. and Julia (Morse) Hammond.

During his residence in Rumford, he has had a position in the office of one of the large corporations, and previously had held a similar position in Berlin, N. H., for years.

He married Miss Olive Agnes Ripley of Paris, who died a year or two since. He leaves two sons, Lewis Hammond of Rumford and Dr. Walter J. Hammond of Dexter. There are also some grandchildren.

The annual Harvest dinner and supper, sale and entertainment, held last week by the United Parish Aid was very successful. There was an abundance of food and a lot left over for sale after a good patronage at both meals. There was a good company present during the afternoon and evening and a happy spirit prevailed. The parcel post office for adults and fish pond for children sold readily and called for more. The very presence of mystery or "sight unseen" is more attractive to both large and small than all else in plain sight to choose from, which shows the human curiosity bump is very prominent. The entertainment in the evening, which was free to all, was in charge of the pastor, Rev. J. W. Rogers, assisted by the committee of four young ladies, consisted of songs on the screen, shadow-graphs, stunts and games, in which the participants enjoyed the fun as much as the rest.

Mr. and Mrs. Alanson Cummings started on their return trip to California, Tuesday, in their auto, with a trailer attachment. They have been here about a year and a half. Mrs. Elizabeth Morton accompanied by Julia Morton of South Paris, was present and she gave an account of her visit to the World's W. C. T. U. Convention at Lusane, Switzerland. She was gone several weeks and visited six different countries. The description and pictures which she passed around were very interesting and the Union felt to appreciate her coming. Harlequin ice cream and salines were served.

Willard Berry of New Gloucester and Mildred Turner of Bridgton were united in marriage at the home of the officiating minister, Rev. Eleanor B. Forbes, last week, Tuesday morning. The double ring service was used. They will reside in New Gloucester.

The senior class W. P. H. S. drama "Step On It, Stan" was given in the Grange Hall last Thursday evening. The hall was full. The play was full of pep and comedy and well put on. The parts were all carried off fine and were very enjoyable. Much credit is due Annabel Snow, the English teacher, for her efforts in coaching the play. The cast is as follows:

Stan Gray, the town's leading failure..... Eugene Penley
Charlie Norris, the town's leading leader..... Stanley Andrews
Sid Prosser, the town's leading leader..... George Waterhouse
Ray Gryder, the town's leading citizen..... Leona Bane
Peggy Brooks, who inspires Stan to "step on it"..... Muna Hanson
Hazel Wilson, the object of Charlie's affection..... Ruby Lane
Frances Quincy, the town's leading old maid..... Leona Bane
Suey Shepard, the town's richest girl..... Hill
Sarah Rogers, direct from Willow Springs, in search of her fortune..... Elizabeth

The specialties consisted of a character duet, "That's My Kentucky Now" by Mary Patch and Sylvia Morgan; a duet, "Duffing and Dreaming" by Elizabeth and Armita Rowe, each had an encore and several selections by the village orchestra of five pieces.
